JAPANESE CHRISTIAN CHURCH DEDICATED

The first regular service in the new Japanese Christian church was attended by a large number of local Japanese as well as other nationalities on Sunday. With impressive and interesting ceremonies the pretty little chapel was fittingly dedicated. The new edifice is located at the corner of King and Liliha streets, on the line of the tramway. It is neat and cozy and has an adequate seating capacity for the accommodation of its congregation for many years to come. By its erection the Christian church is now ably prepared to carry on a much larger work among their brethren in this city. The services were in charge of Rev. W. K. Arbill, while O. Ota delivered an able address in the native tongue. Rev. J. C. Hay also spoke a few words of a congratulatory nature to the congregation.

The following program was carried out:

Invocation.
"Kimi-ga-yo" ("My Country 'tis of Thee").
Introductory remarks by Rev. W. K. Arbill.
Hymn.
Lesson by O. Ota.
Prayers by Rev. Mr. Ota, Miss Harrison and Rev. J. C. Hay.
Quartet.
Hymn.
Short addresses by Rev. J. C. Hay, Rev. H. Kihara, Rev. T. Okumura and Rev. O. H. Gullik.
Hymn.

American Drummers Have Come to Stay

San Francisco Jobber Tells Why the Commercial Agents Have Sold to Retailers in Hawaii.

"I noticed an article in the afternoon papers about the wholesalers and jobbers of Honolulu having resolved to resist the encroachments of drummers from the mainland," said a San Francisco wholesaler to a Republican reporter at the Hawaiian hotel last night. "In the article complaint is made that drummers, after securing the legitimate trade of the wholesalers and jobbers, go to consumers for business. It is possible that a few have done this, but I deny the truth of such a statement in the main. I can cite two instances which have come under my observation during my visit here of ten days where drummers solicited orders of retailers simply because the wholesalers turned them down."

"One drummer representing a large importing house on the coast came down here on the same steamer with me. He only intended to do business with the local jobbers. But when he tried to sell to them they refused to do any business whatever with the drummer, saying they did not need his services to help them to place their orders. Very naturally the drummer was mad at this. He was determined not to return home without having sold enough goods to warrant the expense of his trip, so he went to the retailers and sold to them. He was so successful here in Honolulu that he went over to Hawaii and Maui and took orders from the local merchants on both these islands, doing a very good business. A second drummer whom I met here had a similar experience and he, too, took orders from retailers after the wholesalers refused to buy of him."

"A hardware drummer who arrived last week met a similar rebuff from the wholesalers in his line and he told me Saturday that he was debating in his mind the matter of soliciting the retail trade, and he rather thought he would do so. As an experienced wholesaler, I think the jobbers in Honolulu are making a mistake. Their action will result in the establishment of branch houses here which will be content with smaller profits than now hold here and the days of big money in any line of business will have passed away for all. In other words, the Honolulu jobbers will have 'killed the goose that laid the golden egg.' The drummers are here to stay and each succeeding month will see more and more of them making this territory."

Fire on Waialua Plantation.
A fire on Waialua plantation on Friday afternoon burned over twenty acres of cane before it was subdued. The loss will not be great, as the cane saved will be immediately ground. The origin of the fire is a mystery, but it is attributed to sparks from a locomotive.
